

HUFFPOST TRAVEL

By Elizabeth Thorp : President, EDT Communications & Poshbrood.com
Published March 10, 2011

Five Fun and Fabulous Family Hotel Rooms

If your brood is anything like mine, traveling with the little ones is not exactly all sunshine and cupcakes -- more like overcast with a chance of hysterical temper tantrums. Thankfully, if you're clever about your destination, at the end of interminable plane/train/car/mule journeys lies salvation. So hop online, book a kid-tested, mom- and dad-approved room in one of our top family picks below, and stock up on Xanax (for you) and "Spring" Oreos (for them, although I confess I'm a little curious how they managed to get the filling to be so... yellow) and you'll be relaxing in harmony in the blink of an eye.

As always, visit www.poshbrood.com for the latest and greatest in family travel tips, deals, and chatter. If you have an outstanding family travel tip or pick, share on Poshbrood.com. We'll see you there!

Hotel ZaZa, Houston, Texas

Hotel ZaZa scrapped and overhauled the faded grand dame Warwick Hotel in 2006. The swanky palace erected in its place has been broadcasting Houston's "chic city" cred -- big, bold, and Texas-style -- ever since. Zaza features giant, quirkily designed theme suites marrying style and cheeky nods to the hotel's Texan roots.

Our Favorite Room: The Houston, We Have a Problem Suite

At 1,035 sq ft, the room caters to every kid with an astronaut fantasy, starting with the life-sized spacesuit waiting at the door and the in-room telescope. With a moon-inspired couch and a space-age bubble chair, this suite is an ideal launching pad for your Houston area mission.

Other suites are similarly clever, and Zaza's food, services, and extras are sure to please the whole brood.

The "Houston We Have a Problem" Suite is $499/night. www.hotelzaza.com

Read our full review of [Hotel Zaza here.]